Midway Chatter

The harness races were scarcely over Wednesday when John Fissell, race secretary, announced that plans are under way already for a Forrest Short Memorial Race in 1976 and every year thereafter.

Looking even further ahead, Fissell said that in 1977 the racing committee of the Pickaway County Fair Board is already giving tentative consideration to a 3-day meeting. A lot will depend on the success of the racing program next year. Fissell noted that it takes a lot of people to make a racing program successful and extended his appreciation to all who helped this year.

The tractor pullers wasted no time in demolishing the judges stand on the infield of the race track Wednesday. Even before the racing officials could complete the paper work involved and leave the stand, Ed Evans had attached the boom of his wrecker to the roof of the structure, and electricians were dismantling the wiring and loud speaker systems.

But the pullers weren't that quick in getting their own event started. It was going on 9 p.m. before they began pulling and it was 4 a.m. today before all pullers had completed the events. Results of the pull were unavailable early today for publication, but hopefully the complete tabulation will be ready Friday.

Yesterday was kid's day and all youngsters were able to ride at reduced prices through the courtesy of the fair board and the Gooding Amusement Co. Because of all the activity at the fair yesterday, it had to be the biggest gate of the week.

Only two days left. The tractor pull continues to be the big grandstand event tonight while tomorrow the demolition derby takes over. We've heard pro and con comments on the admission prices at the grandstand. Sometimes the ticket price may seem high, but remember, there is no admission charge to the fairgrounds, only 50 cents for parking. And a $2 purchase of a membership ticket includes free parking and voting privileges.

Admired George Hamrick's attire this week. Blue denim bib overalls and a striped shirt yesterday. The extension office people are riding around this year in a golf cart provided by our favorite little old winemaker, Jack Goode.

Beef cattle judge was Irv Bell, a former Pickaway County Extension 4-H agent. After leaving Pickaway county, Irv went on a tour of duty with the United States Navy and then served several years as 4-H extension agent in Jackson County. He now operates a beef cattle farm in Muskingum County.

Premium money from all open classes that have been judged may be picked up at the fair office anytime.

Energy Agreement Fails; Higher Prices Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials are preparing for the abrupt end of U.S. oil price controls on Aug. 31, and Congress is moving to soften the impact on the consumer of higher petroleum prices after the House killed President Ford's plan for a gradual end to controls.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb, declaring "we are extremely disappointed" by the House rejection, said: "At the President's direction, FEA is making necessary preparations for an orderly transition" from controlled oil prices on Aug. 31.

The House voted 228 to 189 Wednesday night against Ford's plan. The action was the second time in two weeks that the House has turned down a White House proposal to phase out oil price controls, and an FEA official said after the vote there would be no more administration attempts to compromise with Congress on decontrolling prices.

The FEA estimates that overall petroleum prices will increase about 4 cents to 6 cents a gallon over the six-to-nine months following the Aug. 31 expiration of price controls. The expiration means the end of the $5.25-a-barrel lid on old oil, which makes up more than 60 per cent of U.S.-produced oil. That oil then would be free to rise to the unregulated price of new oil, which is more than $11 a barrel.

Meanwhile, the Senate is ready to take up a bill to tax windfall oil profits and return some of that money to consumers. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee said he hopes to have the bill passed by the Senate and the House this week before Congress begins its month-long recess Friday night.

The bill, which was approved 11 to 0 Wednesday by the Senate Finance Committee, would provide tax cuts totaling about $375 over 5½ years for each of the 150 million Americans 18 years of age or older.

The bill's windfall profits tax basically takes 90 per cent on all oil price increases above the $5.25-a-barrel controlled price, though the industry could escape up to 25 per cent of the tax by reinvesting that amount in further oil or gas exploration.

Still awaiting House action today is a Senate-passed bill extending the price controls for six months beyond the Aug. 31 expiration. Ford has said he will veto such a measure.

Business Taxes Would Be Slashed Under New Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring that the nation's industry has grown rusty and needs help, the Ford administration asked Congress today to cut taxes for corporations and stockholders by nearly $14 billion over a six-year period.

"This is not a program for big business. It is a program to benefit all savers," Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said in presenting the tax plan to the House Ways and Means Committee.

Simon also urged the Congress to help develop a program to encourage new savings by all Americans by offering special tax incentives, and he urged that the 1974 Individual Retirement Accounts legislation be broadened.

The major part of the program outlined by Simon was a reduction in corporate and stockholder taxes, by a phased out elimination of what is regarded as a double tax on dividends.

At present, corporations pay taxes on their profits before any dividends are paid to stockholders, and then stockholders face additional tax liability on the dividends they receive.

Prior to making the proposals to Congress, Simon had sketched the outlines to newsmen.

Simon proposed that the double taxation be eliminated by two actions — first, giving corporations a tax deduction equal to about 50 per cent of the dividends they pay, and secondly, through a tax credit to stockholders.

Stockholders would be able to claim a tax credit equal to about one-half of the dividends they receive. The total savings to stockholders, based on current levels of tax payments, would be about $6.3 billion a year.

The direct savings to corporations from the dividends deduction would be about $7.5 billion, Simon said.

He proposed phasing in the stockholder credit over a five-year period from 1978 to 1982 at a rate of about $1.25 billion in savings for stockholders each year. The stockholder credit, however, would not apply to tax-exempt or foreign stockholders under the administration proposal.

The dividend deduction for corporations would be phased in over a six-year period, beginning in 1977 with a net reduction in corporate taxes of about $2.5 billion the first year, increasing at a rate of about $1 billion a year.

Simon said the double taxation of dividends "is inherently inequitable" since other kinds of income are taxed only once. He said most of the nation's major trading partners already have acted to eliminate or reduce the double tax.

Congress Quickly Passes Pay Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' vote for its cost-of-living pay raise gives the members two dates to watch: October 1975 for setting the amount, and November 1976 when the voters speak.

Congressman William H. Harsha criticized Wednesday's house approval of automatic annual cost of living pay increases for members of Congress and top level federal executives.

In voting against the bill, Harsha said "I opposed consideration of the pay raise without the public being forewarned."

He deplored the swiftness and near secrecy which characterized the action by the house in passing Wednesday what the Senate had approved Tuesday night. The pay increase was tacked onto a minor postal bill.

"Regardless of the merits of the cost of living raise, this is not the proper way for Congress to conduct the people's business," said Harsha. "It is not the kind of tactics which inspires the confidence and trust of the American people in the Congress."

Harsha was particularly critical of the house decision to raise its pay and then take a month's vacation without having approved an energy bill.

Concern with what the voters may think showed through the House debate Wednesday, the maneuvering to determine whether there would be a recorded vote disclosing each member's position and the final breathtaking 214-213 recorded vote which passed the bill.

In the Senate, where only a third of the members will be up for re-election next year, the measure passed Tuesday, 58 to 29.

Democratic House freshmen, especially vulnerable to opposition next year because they are newcomers, voted 51 to 21 against the bill.

Leaders of both parties in the House predominantly were for the measure. President Ford had urged passage of the pay-raise measure and so his approval is assured.

What Congress did was to blanket itself, the vice president, Cabinet members and other high officials and the top echelons of the civil service under the comparability adjustment system now in effect for the rank and file of government employees.

The president, after receiving expert advice, recommends to Congress adjustments designed to reflect pay trends in private employment. They go into effect in 30 days unless Congress says no.

The next recommendations are due in October. Preliminary calculations are that comparability might work out to more than an 8 per cent increase, but Ford indicated he might hold his recommendation to 5 per cent. The president's $200,000 salary, raised in 1969 from $100,000, is not involved.

Among those that would be affected are the $62,500 salaries of the vice president and chief justice, the $60,000 salaries of Cabinet members and associate justices of the Supreme Court, the $42,500 salaries of senators, representatives and federal appeal judges, the $40,000 salaries of federal district judges and others ranging down to $36,000.

If the October increase comes to 5 per cent, members of Congress would get a $2,125 raise and Cabinet officers would get $3,000 more.

Congress, which has been struggling with energy legislation almost since it convened in January, whizzed the pay raise legislation through in two days.

The Senate attached it Tuesday to a minor unrelated bill the House had passed. The House Rules Committee took less than a quarter hour to prescribe quick procedures Wednesday for handling it. The House then voted to waive the usual one-day waiting period and passed it.

TIES RECORD—Miracle Michael, owned by Harry M. Glaney of Cincinnati and driven by Joe Essig, tied the Pickaway County track record Wednesday pacing the second heat of the fifth race in 2:04. The 3-year-old pacer has a record of 1:59 and now has won 13 of its 17 starts this year, finished second three times and third once. Miracle Michael now shares the track mark with Jerry MacPherson, set a year ago with the late Forrest Short in the sulky.

Hiroshima Still Living With Bomb

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Thirty years after its destruction by an American atom bomb, Hiroshima is a prospering commercial center dedicated to peace.

But an unanswered question plagues the now grown children of the 100,000 survivors of the holocaust — will they inherit the radiation diseases of their parents?

A long-term study by the newly created joint United States-Japan Radiation Effects Research Foundation will attempt to give the answer.

As the successor to the American-backed Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission, which has operated here since 1947, it plans to continue the quest into the deadly effects of nuclear radiation well into the 21st century.

The doubt and anxiety which linger over Hiroshima cloud the lives of nearly all its 839,000 inhabitants, most of whom have relatives or friends killed or maimed by the first atomic weapon used against humans.

Despite this lurking concern, life goes on with vigor.

Estimates of the Hiroshima bomb toll vary. The Japanese say 200,000 died while Americans estimate a more conservative 80,000.

An energetic team of Hiroshimans, led by its first postwar mayor, the late Shinzo Hamai, set about raising the city from the ashes. Absorbed in their task, they had little time to hate but enough to visualize their reborn city as the peace capital of the world.

Hiroshima today is an example of how well they succeeded. The population in 1944, the year before the cataclysm, was 336,483. It plummeted to 136,518 by November 1945, as many fled, dreading the unknown terrors of radiation. By 1955, it had climbed to 374,793 and 10 years ago it was 524,558. The city now is a flourishing regional center dotted with skyscrapers, high-rise apartment buildings, wide avenues, parks, new schools, and an ambitious half billion dollar industrial park development in the western suburbs.

The sleek, high-speed trains of the new Tokaido line now link Hiroshima with Tokyo in five hours as opposed to 10 hours before, bringing an influx of tourists who mingle with the crowds in the covered shopping arcades, the gaily decorated department stores and the proliferation of new restaurants, bars, coffee shops and markets.

Inflation and recession have hit Hiroshima as they have elsewhere, with layoffs at the big Mitsubishi shipbuilding yards and the Toyo Kogyo auto works. But business leaders are optimistic that the economy is on the upswing.

The center of Hiroshima is its grassy peace park — Heiwa Koen — where a museum records the horrors of the bomb, a cenotaph with the names of the dead, and the stark skeleton of the atomic dome, the old industry promotion hall.

The park, with its monument to the thousands of child victims, its eternal flame, its shade trees and rose gardens, is a symbol of peace.

Hiroshima Still Living With Bomb

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Thirty years after its destruction by an American atom bomb, Hiroshima is a prospering commercial center dedicated to peace.

But an unanswered question plagues the now grown children of the 100,000 survivors of the holocaust — will they inherit the radiation diseases of their parents?

A long-term study by the newly created joint United States-Japan Radiation Effects Research Foundation will attempt to give the answer.

As the successor to the American-backed Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission, which has operated here since 1947, it plans to continue the quest into the deadly effects of nuclear radiation well into the 21st century.

The doubt and anxiety which linger over Hiroshima cloud the lives of nearly all its 839,000 inhabitants, most of whom have relatives or friends killed or maimed by the first atomic weapon used against humans.

Despite this lurking concern, life goes on with vigor.

Estimates of the Hiroshima bomb toll vary. The Japanese say 200,000 died while Americans estimate a more conservative 80,000.

An energetic team of Hiroshimans, led by its first postwar mayor, the late Shinzo Hamai, set about raising the city from the ashes. Absorbed in their task, they had little time to hate but enough to visualize their reborn city as the peace capital of the world.

Hiroshima today is an example of how well they succeeded. The population in 1944, the year before the cataclysm, was 336,483. It plummeted to 136,518 by November 1945, as many fled, dreading the unknown terrors of radiation. By 1955, it had climbed to 374,793 and 10 years ago it was 524,558.

The city now is a flourishing regional center dotted with skyscrapers, high-rise apartment buildings, wide avenues, parks, new schools, and an ambitious half billion dollar industrial park development in the western suburbs.

The sleek, high-speed trains of the new Tokaido line now link Hiroshima with Tokyo in five hours as opposed to 10 hours before, bringing an influx of tourists who mingle with the crowds in the covered shopping arcades, the gaily decorated department stores and the proliferation of new restaurants, bars, coffee shops and markets.

Inflation and recession have hit Hiroshima as they have elsewhere, with layoffs at the big Mitsubishi shipbuilding yards and the Toyo Kogyo auto works. But business leaders are optimistic that the economy is on the upswing.

The center of Hiroshima is its grassy peace park — Heiwa Koen — where a museum records the horrors of the bomb, a cenotaph with the names of the dead, and the stark skeleton of the atomic dome, the old industry promotion hall.

The park, with its monument to the thousands of child victims, its eternal flame, its shade trees and rose gardens, is a symbol of peace.

European Security Conference

Amid much hoopla, a 35-nation summit meeting has opened in Helsinki Finland. A 30,000-word statement of principles is supposed to guarantee more human rights for the peoples of Europe.

Long-time spearhead of such a meeting has been the Soviet Union, whose record in the field of human rights can at best be charitably described as dismal.

Russia has been pressing for such a meeting since 1954, but wished to exclude the United States and Canada. When they found this would not be possible, they began plumping for a full-scale summit.

Regrettably, the central result of the conference will be a nonbinding statement of high-sounding principles that depend strictly on good will to implement.

Perhaps the best advice we could give to President Ford and Western leaders at the meeting would be to hope for the best and keep their hands on their wallets.

Advice And Consent

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — A lot of married people who had replaced their confessions and psychiatrists with Ann Landers are understandably dismayed by her decision to bounce her husband Jules after 36 years of wedded bliss.

Over her years as keeper of the nations' marital flame ("Each year has been better than the last because we have grown together," she said of Big Julie on their 30th), Ann must have saved untold marriages among her readers. Her advice to distraught wives who sought her counsel about how to save a marriage was always constructive. Sometimes it said, in effect, "Shoot your mother-in-law."

But when it came time for Ann to sever her Siamese link with Jules, whose pet name for her was something like "Field Marshal," Ann beseeched her weeping readers, "Please don't write or call and ask for details. The response would be 'Sorry, this is a personal matter.' "The touching appeal for privacy was given an 8-column, page one, "play" in at least one of Ann's client papers.

This is going to be a difficult year for any couple who are Ann's fans and have their 36th wedding anniversary coming up. How will they explain to their weeping children and grandchildren to cancel plans for the big surprise wedding anniversary party, send back the cake, deflate the balloons, and hire a lawyer to fight the breach-of-contract suit they were hit with by Slapsy Maxie and his Merry Marijuanas, the combo hired to play "The Anniversary Waltz" in three-quarter time?

"Mumsie and yours truly feel sorry about all the trouble you've gone to, kids," dad will surely say, fighting his tears at the family pow-wow in one of the private dining rooms at Big Mac's. "We just hope and pray that you'll understand. If Ann Landers feels that 36 years is the right cut-off point in a marriage, well, that's good enough for those who cherish her like Mumsie and this speaker. Mumsie and you-know-who still love each other as much as the day when we were wed during FDR's second term. But we'd feel uncomfortable, and not very law-abiding, living under the same roof when we know that Ann is not with Julie who spends so much time these days in London tending to a troubled restaurant business.

"So, to show our undying respect for her judgment — which we have found infallible ever since she urged me, under my nom de plume of 'Puzzled,' not to wear two-toned golf shoes with my tux — mumsie and the husband she endearingly calls 'number one' are now splitville. We haven't even bothered Ann to let her know. But we feel in our heart of hearts she'd say, 'right on!'"

My wife and I know a crazy couple who just had their 44th wedding anniversary. They have children and grandchildren spread all over the country. But ever since Ann and Julie called it quits, after a trial that seems to our friends as limited as, say, that of Cher and Sonny, they now feel that they are living in sin.

James Mason Busier Than Ever

ROME (AP) — The hair is graying, quite naturally for an English gentleman of 64. But the eyes still contain the lively hint of mischief and the voice sounds as smooth as Hampshire cream.

Over a cool drink in the courtyard of his Rome hotel, James Mason talks of his present life.

It is extraordinarily busy; already this year he has appeared in four movies and a television miniseries. He may well be Europe's most active film actor.

This is a new phase in the varied life of James Mason.

An architecture graduate of Cambridge, the only work he could find in depression England was acting. He had reasonable success in London plays and quickie movies, became an international star after the war with "The Seventh Veil" and "Odd Man Out."

In 1948 he left England for Hollywood, raising a furor with his cutting remarks about British films. He and his lively wife, the former Pamela Kellino, created an equal stir in America with their outspoken opinions.

His U.S. films ranged from good — "Desert Fox," "Julius Caesar," "20,000 Leagues under the Sea," "A Star Is Born (Academy nomination)" — to the not-so-good — "Botany Bay,"

"Prince Valiant," "The Decks Ran Red."

After his marriage ended, Mason returned to Europe and continued his career in such American-sponsored films as "Lolita," "Lord Jim," "Georgy Girl," and "The Blue Max." Now he makes his home on the north shore of Switzerland's Lac Lemman with his wife Clarissa, a vivacious Australian actress.

"But we don't see as much of the place as we'd like," the actor admitted. "Earlier this year I made a picture in Germany, 'The Inside Out' with Telly Savalas and Robert Culp, and two Italian films, 'The Deal' with Valentina Cortese and 'The Left Hand of the Law' with Stephen Boyd."

Mason had just returned from Sicily where he had filmed a Carlo Ponti-Zev Braun feature, "The Devil and the School Teacher," costarring Jennifer O'Neill and Franco Nero, as well as part of the five-segment "Roots of the Mafia" for television.

Mason didn't express concern that some of the films he accepts might have a slight air of shock.

"Of course it would be nice to do only things of quality, but alas, that just isn't possible," he sighed.

"Even with scripts that are not the best, I can always find something to challenge me."

Grain Inspection Probe Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials are probing reports of irregularities in Louisiana's state-operated grain inspection system as part of the continuing investigation of corruption in the grain export industry, according to sources close to the investigation.

The state Department of Agriculture is responsible for the inspection of grain at Port Allen, across the Mississippi River from Baton Rouge, while most other grain leaving Louisiana ports for overseas destinations is inspected by private agencies, already the targets of an investigation.

"We have reports of irregularities in the operation of the inspection system in the Baton Rouge area," said one source. "This is the subject of official interest to federal authorities."

"We're ready to expand the investigation," said U.S. Atty. Douglas M. Gonzales in Baton Rouge. But he said most of the work leading up to the probe in Baton Rouge has been conducted in New Orleans, where U.S. Atty. Gerald J. Gallinghouse has coordinated efforts of the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Since the over-all investigation began more than one year ago, 33 persons have been indicted, including 13 present or former executives of the Bunge Corp., one of the nation's six largest grain firms, and inspectors working for private firms hired to check grain for export.

No indictments have been returned against anyone connected directly with private firms and local boards of trade, inspectors all of the grain sent overseas, under provision of the U.S. Grain Standards Act.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, has indicated a strong preference for a combined federal and state inspection system to replace the current program, but he has not revealed a final proposal. Current federal law prohibits the U.S. government from inspecting the export grain.

Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, is planning to introduce legislation Thursday to eliminate the private and state roles and replace them with a federal operation, with a director appointed by the president.

"Do I have to WAIT for a cold? Didn't you ever hear of preventive medicine?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I feel as if I'm living in an aerosol factory. Between the bathroom, the bedroom, the garage and the garden, I inhale more spray fumes than the fresh air that made me move to the suburbs.

Now I understand that these things are dangerous. What can we do about it?

We are being flooded by case reports about the dangers of aerosol concentration.

Shortness of breath and chronic cough are the result of irritation to the bronchial tubes and the lungs.

Actual burns of the skin and the eyes have been reported due to chemicals in aerosol disinfectant cans.

Many of the sprays have an oily base. Millions of particles of fine, misty oil can find their way into the deep recesses of the lungs. Lipoid (or "oily") pneumonia in children and adults have been reported.

A new hazard has recently sprung up. Young people are sniffing aerosols for "kicks," a modification of glue-sniffing which seems to have been controlled.

Environmentalists, of course, have been insisting that the protective ozone that surrounds the earth must inevitably be affected by the impact of aerosol sprays.

Legislation will have to be directed to the elimination of aerosol sprays if this health hazard is to be reduced.

I've been told that I may need a gastric analysis. Is this a very painful test?

Mrs. H. R., Minn.

Dear Mrs. R.:

I am certain that your doctor must have assured you that, although the procedure is unpleasant, it is by no means a painful one.

A rubber tube is inserted through the mouth, and into the stomach, after the throat is sprayed with a local anesthetic.

The entire study takes a very short time. Through the tube is extracted the secretions in the stomach. These are studied for the presence of hydrochloric acid, enzymes, gastric juices and for the presence of abnormal cells.

You should not delay having it done if it is recommended.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If loan demand is sluggish, why should interest rates be rising, seemingly in defiance of the law of supply and demand?

In the past week many of the nation's leading banks began charging their best corporate customers a basic rate of 7.50 per cent, up from 7.25 per cent, while acknowledging that loan demand was poor.

While the home building industry remains depressed, many home mortgage lenders have been letting their rates creep up toward an average of 9 per cent during the past month, and have been reducing the length of loans.

Lenders throughout the country offer various explanations for the phenomenon, but in almost every instance they reveal a common attitude, a fear that inflation and economic instability lies ahead.

When such fear or uncertainty exists, lenders of all sizes and types avoid committing their funds for long periods of time based on current conditions. Instead, they anticipate the future — and charge accordingly.

Despite denials, activities of the Federal Reserve Board appear to be adding to the fears. Some lenders appear convinced that the Fed has shifted to a deliberately tighter monetary policy, although that agency says it hasn't.

The Fed can manipulate the supply of money by adding to or reducing reserves banks must maintain. In recent weeks it has been leaving the banking system as a whole with fewer reserves, making it less easy to make loans.

Arthur F. Burns, Fed chairman, told a congressional committee that the purpose of its action was to dry up a temporary bulge in the money supply that could feed inflation. It did not represent long-range policy, he said.

Whatever, many lenders have interpreted the Fed move as a signal of things to come, of a tight monetary policy that would restrict the money supply and force them to limit their loans and raise their rates.

More importantly, they fear that to make loans at today's relatively low rates could prove disastrous to them if, in the immediate future, they themselves were forced to borrow at higher rates.

Therefore, said Carlos Arrigunaga, economist of the Bank of America, lenders are emphasizing selectivity and quality. "It is not discrimination," he said. "It is very straightforward."

While to some extent the expectation of higher rates feeds on itself and becomes a self-fulfilling fear, some other factors are involved also.

Lenders know, for example, that the U.S. Treasury will be in the market for huge sums. And there are widespread expectations that commercial and industrial loans will almost certainly be higher by October.

Both these factors would apply upward pressure on future rates, and probably discourage lenders from making loans at current rates.

Levi Blasts Burglaries By FBI Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi describes FBI burglaries as "very dangerous for the country" and says he could not consider authorizing the practice except in the most extreme national emergency.

Levi said that even in emergencies, no investigative agency should be permitted to carry out a burglary without specific written authorization from the president and the attorney general.

In an interview Tuesday with four reporters, the attorney general also said:

—He is considering filing an antitrust suit against the world's oil cartel, but he doesn't yet know whether that would force gasoline prices down for American consumers.

—He thinks government efforts to impose minority hiring goals on employers amount to a quota system, and he is disturbed that the government refuses to call them that.

—He will not campaign for President Ford's election because he thinks the attorney general should stay out of partisan politics.

Questioned about burglaries conducted by the FBI for at least 30 years, Levi noted that a department committee is drafting guidelines governing FBI investigative practices.

Technical Director Named At O-I Inc.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The scientist credited with developing the first experimental meteorological satellite program has been named technical director at Owens-Illinois, Inc.

Dr. Edgar M. Cortright, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va., takes over Oct. 1 at Owens-Illinois, the company announced.

"Do I have to WAIT for a cold? Didn't you ever hear of preventive medicine?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I feel as if I'm living in an aerosol factory. Between the bathroom, the bedroom, the garage and the garden, I inhale more spray fumes than the fresh air that made me move to the suburbs.

Now I understand that these things are dangerous. What can we do about it?

Mr. L. R., N.J.

Dear Mr. R.: We are being flooded by case reports about the dangers of aerosol concentration.

Shortness of breath and chronic cough are the result of irritation to the bronchial tubes and the lungs.

Actual burns of the skin and the eyes have been reported due to chemicals in aerosol disinfectant cans.

Many of the sprays have an oily base. Millions of particles of fine, misty oil can find their way into the deep recesses of the lungs. Lipoid (or "oily") pneumonia in children and adults have been reported.

A new hazard has recently sprung up. Young people are sniffing aerosols for "kicks," a modification of glue-sniffing which seems to have been controlled.

Environmentalists, of course, have been insisting that the protective ozone that surrounds the earth must inevitably be affected by the impact of aerosol sprays.

Legislation will have to be directed to the elimination of aerosol sprays if this health hazard is to be reduced.

I've been told that I may need a gastric analysis. Is this a very painful test?

Mrs. H. R., Minn.

Dear Mrs. R.: I am certain that your doctor must have assured you that, although the procedure is unpleasant, it is by no means a painful one.

A rubber tube is inserted through the mouth, and into the stomach, after the throat is sprayed with a local anesthetic.

The entire study takes a very short time. Through the tube is extracted the secretions in the stomach. These are studied for the presence of hydrochloric acid, enzymes, gastric juices and for the presence of abnormal cells.

You should not delay having it done if it is recommended.

Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — If loan demand is sluggish, why should interest rates be rising, seemingly in defiance of the law of supply and demand?

In the past week many of the nation's leading banks began charging their best corporate customers a basic rate of 7.50 per cent, up from 7.25 per cent, while acknowledging that loan demand was poor.

While the home building industry remains depressed, many home mortgage lenders have been letting their rates creep up toward an average of 9 per cent during the past month, and have been reducing the length of loans.

Lenders throughout the country offer various explanations for the phenomenon, but in almost every instance they reveal a common attitude, a fear that inflation and economic instability lies ahead.

When such fear or uncertainty exists, lenders of all sizes and types avoid committing their funds for long periods of time based on current conditions. Instead, they anticipate the future — and charge accordingly.

Despite denials, activities of the Federal Reserve Board appear to be adding to the fears. Some lenders appear convinced that the Fed has shifted to a deliberately tighter monetary policy, although that agency says it hasn't.

The Fed can manipulate the supply of money by adding to or reducing reserves banks must maintain. In recent weeks it has been leaving the banking system as a whole with fewer reserves, making it less easy to make loans.

Arthur F. Burns, Fed chairman, told a congressional committee that the purpose of its action was to dry up a temporary bulge in the money supply that could feed inflation. It did not represent long-range policy, he said.

Whatever, many lenders have interpreted the Fed move as a signal of things to come, of a tight monetary policy that would restrict the money supply and force them to limit their loans and raise their rates.

More importantly, they fear that to make loans at today's relatively low rates could prove disastrous to them if, in the immediate future, they themselves were forced to borrow at higher rates.

Therefore, said Carlos Arrigunaga, economist of the Bank of America, lenders are emphasizing selectivity and quality. "It is not discrimination," he said. "It is very straightforward."

While to some extent the expectation of higher rates feeds on itself and becomes a self-fulfilling fear, some other factors are involved also.

Lenders know, for example, that the U.S. Treasury will be in the market for huge sums. And there are widespread expectations that commercial and industrial loans will almost certainly be higher by October.

Both these factors would apply upward pressure on future rates, and probably discourage lenders from making loans at current rates.

Levi Blasts Burglaries By FBI Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi describes FBI burglaries as "very dangerous for the country" and says he could not consider authorizing the practice except in the most extreme national emergency.

Levi said that even in emergencies, no investigative agency should be permitted to carry out a burglary without specific written authorization from the president and the attorney general.

In an interview Tuesday with four reporters, the attorney general also said:

—He is considering filing an antitrust suit against the world's oil cartel, but he doesn't yet know whether that would force gasoline prices down for American consumers.

—He thinks government efforts to impose minority hiring goals on employers amount to a quota system, and he is disturbed that the government refuses to call them that.

—He will not campaign for President Ford's election because he thinks the attorney general should stay out of partisan politics.

Questioned about burglaries conducted by the FBI for at least 30 years, Levi noted that a department committee is drafting guidelines governing FBI investigative practices.

After only an eight-day vacation I have become so outrageously spoiled so far as getting back into the daily routine that it would never do for me to have been gone any longer.

I am ready to return to the sunny south, however, because it was actually much cooler there than it has been here.

We enjoyed a visit with our adored former neighbor, 101-year-old Phoebe Smiley and her daughter Ruth "Sweetpea" Shipe at Macon, Ga. but before we got to their home we went by way of Pigeon Forge and Gatlinburg, Tenn. and savored the sights, sounds and craftsmen of these two interesting tourist towns.

Driving through the Great Smokey Mountains proved to be quite stimulating and even more so when we sighted and stopped to "converse" with a small black bear (we stayed in the car, of course).

Thru the Smokies to the Cherokee Indian Reservation in North Carolina we went and from there to Macon (with an overnight stay at Atlanta where we arrived at our motel just as an armed robbery took place — made for some real "peaceful" sleeping).

Following our stop in Macon we departed for the Florida environs and did the whole tourist bit from Jacksonville on south to below Melbourne. St. Augustine proved to be a fascinating town to my traveling companions Belle Sowers, Dolly Thompson and daughter Amy (I had been there before but it was great seeing it all once again).

Once Amy got her "tootsies" wet in the Atlantic Ocean she didn't want to leave it but we persuaded her to go a bit farther down the coastline. We settled mainly on Cocoa Beach where our motel was just ½ block from the ocean with the most delightful breeze in the world.

We became somewhat confused (and that is the under statement of the year) trying to find our way to Cocoa Beach and our innkeeper there was still scratching his head and trying to figure out how we got there without going on a toll road but believe me we never paid a toll to get there. We paid plenty of times after arriving to make up for not doing so originally. Wow! are they zonkers on toll roads!

The 2½-hour bus tour of Cape Kennedy Space Center was truly wonderful and very educational. It should be on the must do list of anyone going to that section of Florida. Being there just two days after the Apollo-Soyuz shoot and the very day the two spacecraft met up there in the wild blue yonder gave it all a special atmosphere.

We journeyed down through the famous Indian River fruit belt and loaded the car with oranges, grapefruit, mangoes, papaya juice and every flavor of marmalade they produce. Part of the joy of the trip has been sharing with our friends the fruits we brought home.

On the return trip home we took the route up through the middle of the state where there are numerous orange groves, also. We stopped again to visit for a day with Grandma Smiley and Sweetpea. It was so good to see them both and Grandma Smiley asked about each of her former neighbors and many of her long time Williamsport friends. It is amazing how alert and "with it" she is at her advanced age. Unbelievable, really! Her well known wit was still much in evidence as she replied to some of our remarks. What a sweetheart she still is and so is Sweetpea.

Another day on the road, with a few stops at some of the many carpet mills that line the highway in Georgia, and it was home. But like I said at the beginning — I still wake up expecting to leave the bed unmade, the towels unwashed and no thought of having to prepare meals but after a few moments the "facts of life" sink in and bring me back to reality. Darn it!

The one sad note of our 2,000 plus miles traveling was receiving the unhappy news of the death of Luther Anderson on Friday. Dolly left our company and flew from Orlando. McCoy-Jet Airport to Columbus where she was met by her hubby, Marvie Baby (Mr. Anderson was his grandfather).

It was also interesting to observe the new right turn on red traffic law. Every time I felt like I was breaking the law and just knew the siren would blow, the red light flicker and all that jazz. Takes some getting used to, you know.

Called to our town due to the death of Mr. Anderson were Creighton Anderson and family of Iowa, Clarence Reed of Michigan and Reed Anderson family of Virginia. Our deepest sympathy to his widow Hattie who was his helpmate for more than 60 years.

Mr. Anderson was a highly respected citizen of our village and was always very community minded. He served for several years on village council and prior to and after those years he was street commissioner. He never failed to give a helping hand to his fellowman, neighbors and relatives when needed. He was truly a fine man.

Our young friend, Doug Lane, underwent surgery at Riverside Hospital on Monday. He is in Room 768, Riverside Hospital, Columbus, Ohio. Will each person who reads this column do me the favor of sending Doug a card?

It is difficult to accept hospitalization at any age but when you are a vim, vigorous and vital teenager it is even more so — especially during the carefree summer months. So, please!

Mrs. Lloyd (Roxie) Ratliff is a patient at University Hospital and I am sure she would appreciate hearing from friends, too.

Chatted a minute with Terri Stewart of Circleville who was over here for a visit with Lisa Lovensheimer who is here from Florence, S. C. making the days happier for grandparents John and Edna West. Terri and her family formerly resided in our town.

Hope everyone enjoys the Pickaway County Fair this week and may each 4-H'er be a winner.

Be with you again next week, be the Lord willing. Take care.

Think About: Why is there never enough time to do it right — but always enough time to do it over?

Consumer Credit Bill Pushed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A House subcommittee is studying a bill which would require credit reporting agencies to send copies of credit reports to the person being reported upon.

The bill, presently in the consumer subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, would significantly expand the rights of consumers to know the contents of credit reports about themselves.

The measure is sponsored by Rep. John Thompson, D-15 Cleveland, who said the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act does not go far enough to protect the privacy of individuals.

"The system of credit reporting is an industry which works in secret," Thompson said. "Because under the act the credit reporting agency is not even required to let a person see his files, only hear what is in them, it is possible for inaccuracies to exist which brand a person for life."

Thompson said persons have been refused insurance, bank loans and credit because of false information in their credit files. He said consumers now have little chance to correct those errors.

Under this bill, when a business requests a credit report on an individual, the individual must also receive a copy of the report and the name of the business requesting the check.

COMMON PLEAS COURT PROBATE DIVISION NOTICE

All interested parties are hereby notified that the following Guardian, Administrators, and Trustees have filed their accounts in the Common Pleas Court, Probate Division, Pickaway County, Ohio:

No. 22782 Virginia D. Walters, Guardian of the person and estate of Bertha E. Gephart. Fifth Partial Account.

No. 74-25793 Marjorie Jane Byrd, Administratrix of the estate of George E. Byrd, deceased, First and Final Account.

No. 74-25794 Barbara E. Graves, Administratrix of the estate of Wesley Graves, Jr., deceased, First and Final Account.

No. 23083 Harry L. Margulis, Trustee under Item II of the Will of Harry T. Abbott, deceased, First Partial Account.

No. 15581 Louise S. Meredith and Walter J. Garner, Trustees under the Will of Henry B. Swearingen, deceased, Trustees' Tenth Partial Account.

And that said accounts will be for hearing and settlement before the Court on Monday, August 18th, 1975, at 9 o'clock A.M. Exceptions to said Accounts, if any, must be filed herein on or before August 12th, 1975.

Guy G. Cline, Judge
Common Pleas Court
Probate Division
July 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7, 1975

"The cost to the credit reporting companies would be minimal," Thompson said. "Only the price of an envelope and a stamp."

"The benefit in human terms would be far greater. We will be providing access by individuals to information about their own lives which had never been provided before, and we could help eliminate some of the abuses which have occurred in the past."

Thompson said he doesn't want to kill the credit reporting business. He said it serves a legitimate function in the business world.

"I am only trying to maintain the right of privacy, which the individual has lost and eliminate this right of secrecy which these credit investigating agencies have acquired."

Consumer Credit Bill Pushed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A House subcommittee is studying a bill which would require credit reporting agencies to send copies of credit reports to the person being reported upon.

The bill, presently in the consumer subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, would significantly expand the rights of consumers to know the contents of credit reports about themselves.

The measure is sponsored by Rep. John Thompson, D-15 Cleveland, who said the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act does not go far enough to protect the privacy of individuals.

"The system of credit reporting is an industry which works in secret," Thompson said. "Because under the act the credit reporting agency is not even required to let a person see his files, only hear what is in them, it is possible for inaccuracies to exist which brand a person for life."

Thompson said persons have been refused insurance, bank loans and credit because of false information in their credit files. He said consumers now have little chance to correct those errors.

Under this bill, when a business requests a credit report on an individual, the individual must also receive a copy of the report and the name of the business requesting the check.

COMMON PLEAS COURT PROBATE DIVISION NOTICE

All interested parties are hereby notified that the following Guardian, Administrators, and Trustees have filed their accounts in the Common Pleas Court, Probate Division, Pickaway County, Ohio:

No. 2272 Virginia D. Walters, Guardian of the person and estate of Bertha E. Gephart, Fifth Partial Account.

No. 74-25793 Marjorie Jane Byrd, Administratrix of the estate of George E. Byrd, deceased, First and Final Account.

No. 14-29754 Barbara E. Graves, Administratrix of the estate of Wesley Graves, Jr., deceased, First and Final Account.

No. 23093 Harry L. Margulis, Trustee under Item II of the Will of Harry T. Abbott, deceased, First Partial Account.

No. 15581 Louise S. Meredith and Walter J. Garner, Trustees under the Will of Henry B. Swearingen, deceased, Trustees' Tenth Partial Account.

And that said accounts will be for hearing and settlement before the Court on Monday, August 18th, 1975, at 9 o'clock A. M. Exceptions to said Accounts, if any, must be filed herein on or before August 12th, 1975.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Common Pleas Court, Probate Division, Pickaway County, Ohio, on this the 16th day of July, 1975.

Guy G. Cline, Judge
Common Pleas Court
Probate Division
July 17, 24, 31, Aug. 7, 1975

"The cost to the credit reporting companies would be minimal," Thompson said. "Only the price of an envelope and a stamp."

"The benefit in human terms would be far greater. We will be providing access by individuals to information about their own lives which had never been provided before, and we could help eliminate some of the abuses which have occurred in the past."

Thompson said he doesn't want to kill the credit reporting business. He said it serves a legitimate function in the business world.

"I am only trying to maintain the right of privacy, which the individual has lost and eliminate this right of secrecy which these credit investigating agencies have acquired."

Clark-Konkle Marriage Rites Read In Williamsport Church

The Rev. Richard Crosby officiated the double ring service at Williamsport United Methodist Church. The benediction was pronounced by Brother T. Milton Duke.

Two baskets containing roses, snapdragons, gladiolus, daisies, baby's breath and greenery were placed at the front of the church. The center of the altar held an arrangement of white and yellow daisies with fern and a large yellow candle.

Miss Judy Schein, organist and Miss Vicki Stoer, vocalist, presented a half-hour of music preceding the ceremony.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in an embossed cotton full length gown with nylon lining. The bodice featured a sweetheart neckline and elbow length puffed sleeves. The princess style skirt was encircled with a deep ruffle and a tie at the back of the waistline where the detachable floor length train was caught. The bride's sheer net veil, edged in lace, was worn Madonna style and flowed over the train. She carried a white Bible topped with an arrangement of yellow daisies, yellow roses and baby's breath. Her only jewelry was a sweetheart necklace.

Miss Jennifer Clark was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a long sheer blue polyester print gown and a white picture hat with a ribbon made from the material of her gown. She carried a white basket filled with yellow daisies and baby's breath and a bow of material matching that of her gown.

Bridesmaids were Miss Kim Long, Miss Pam Konkle and Miss Brenda Konkle, sisters of the bridegroom. They were gowned as the honor attendant in green, pink and aqua respectively with white picture hats with ties matching their gowns. Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Teen Couple Caught

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16 and have been going with a guy I'll call Doug for nearly two years. (He's 17). He's very popular at school and comes from a well-to-do family. (More so than mine.)

Well, four months ago his mother came home early and caught us going all the way. She didn't say anything, but the next day Doug told me he'd promised his mother that he'd break up with me. (She doesn't know it, but we've been going all the way for a year and a half.)

We stayed apart for two months then we started seeing each other on the sneak.

Doug's mother was driving by a hamburger shop yesterday and saw Doug and me coming out, so she phoned my mother and told her she didn't approve of Doug's seeing me. (She didn't say why.) My mom said she approved and that it was up to me. (My mom doesn't know I've gone all the way.)

Doug's mother is crazy. Doug said she had been treated for mental illness.

Doug and I love each other and hate all this sneaking around. How can we make his mother realize that she can't keep us apart?

DOUG'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: First, I think Doug's mother was very charitable in not telling your mother why she disapproved of you. Furthermore, your remarks about the woman were unkind. Having been treated for a mental illness does not make a person "crazy."

I have no idea how you can get Doug's mother to realize she can't keep you apart. She's understandably concerned about her son's future, and I can't fault her.

A little unsolicited advice from me: "Going all the way" is for people who can handle mature relationships. Obviously, you don't qualify.

DEAR ABBY: I am 10-years-old and take piano lessons, but I hate it very much. My lessons are almost over for this year, but my mom says I have to take piano lessons again next year, and I don't want to.

What should I do?

PIANO LESSON HATER

DEAR HATER: Take lessons and practice! Many adults have told me that one of the biggest regrets of their lives is having quit music lessons. But not one who has quit has said that he was glad he did.

DEAR ABBY: You hear a lot about ungrateful children. How about ungrateful parents?

Our parents are retired on modest pensions. To save them money, my husband does their plumbing and electrical-repair work. He's no amateur. He makes his living that way. Sometimes he spends two or more days on a repair job for them and asks nothing in return. He even supplies the parts.

My kick is that my parents have called other plumbers and electricians who have charged them outrageous prices (one bill was $75 and the other, $160 for jobs that were so poor my husband had to straighten them out afterward.)

It seems to me that if my folks are going to pay for a job, they could at least call my husband and give him the business.

Should we tell them that from now on they should hire people to do their jobs for them? Or should we apply for guardianship of these old fools?

TIRED OF IT

DEAR TIRED: Of the two alternatives, I'd recommend the former.

See Lima State Policy Change

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — New concepts in drug treatment for the mentally ill will mean that Lima State Hospital can change its drug policy in the future, according to Supt. William Balson.

Balson said three consulting doctors are working out a program that includes the new programs for use of psychotropic drugs.

Balson said the new concepts include one program — called a "drug holiday" — in which patients will receive drugs only six days a week and will not require treatment on the seventh.

A-C Grads Of 1965 To Hold Reunion

Amanda-Clearcreek High School Class of 1965 will hold its 10 year reunion on Sunday, at the Jim Davis residence, Route 1, Amanda.

Activities start at 4 p.m. and a carry-in dinner is planned for 6:00 p.m. Families and guests are welcome. In case of rain, the reunion will be held on August 10.

Teen Couple Caught

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16 and have been going with a guy I'll call Doug for nearly two years. (He's 17). He's very popular at school and comes from a well-to-do family. (More so than mine.)

Well, four months ago his mother came home early and caught us going all the way. She didn't say anything, but the next day Doug told me he'd promised his mother that he'd break up with me. (She doesn't know it, but we've been going all the way for a year and a half.)

We stayed apart for two months then we started seeing each other on the sneak.

Doug's mother was driving by a hamburger shop yesterday and saw Doug and me coming out, so she phoned my mother and told her she didn't approve of Doug's seeing me. (She didn't say why.) My mom said she approved and that it was up to me. (My mom doesn't know I've gone all the way.)

Doug's mother is crazy. Doug said she had been treated for mental illness.

Doug and I love each other and hate all this sneaking around. How can we make his mother realize that she can't keep us apart?

DOUG'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: First, I think Doug's mother was very charitable in not telling your mother why she disapproved of you. Furthermore, your remarks about the woman were unkind. Having been treated for a mental illness does not make a person "crazy."

I have no idea how you can get Doug's mother to realize she can't keep you apart. She's understandably concerned about her son's future, and I can't fault her.

A little unsolicited advice from me: "Going all the way" is for people who can handle mature relationships. Obviously, you don't qualify.

DEAR ABBY: I am 10-years-old and take piano lessons, but I hate it very much. My lessons are almost over for this year, but my mom says I have to take piano lessons again next year, and I don't want to.

What should I do?

PIANO LESSON HATER

DEAR HATER: Take lessons and practice! Many adults have told me that one of the biggest regrets of their lives is having quit music lessons. But not one who has quit has said that he was glad he did.

DEAR ABBY: You hear a lot about ungrateful children. How about ungrateful parents?

Our parents are retired on modest pensions. To save them money, my husband does their plumbing and electrical-repair work. He's no amateur. He makes his living that way. Sometimes he spends two or more days on a repair job for them and asks nothing in return. He even supplies the parts.

My kick is that my parents have called other plumbers and electricians who have charged them outrageous prices (one bill was $75 and the other, $160 for jobs that were so poor my husband had to straighten them out afterward.)

It seems to me that if my folks are going to pay for a job, they could at least call my husband and give him the business.

Should we tell them that from now on they should hire people to do their jobs for them? Or should we apply for guardianship of these old fools?

TIRED OF IT

DEAR TIRED: Of the two alternatives, I'd recommend the former.

See Lima State Policy Change

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — New concepts in drug treatment for the mentally ill will mean that Lima State Hospital can change its drug policy in the future, according to Supt. William Balson.

Balson said three consulting doctors are working out a program that includes the new programs for use of psychotropic drugs.

Balson said the new concepts include one program — called a "drug holiday" — in which patients will receive drugs only six days a week and will not require treatment on the seventh.

Satellite Beams Educational TV

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A beam flashed from outer space Friday by an American satellite will bring a small taste of the 20th century to thousands of Indian villages.

For most of the estimated 45 million villagers, a speech by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi inaugurating the system will mark their first sight of the moving images on the glowing screen so common in U.S. homes.

It is the most extensive test yet of whether education can be speeded up in undeveloped countries by using television where people can't read.

"This is the first time that in spite of the distances you can not only hear my voice but also see me," Mrs. Gandhi said in a 10-minute videotaped message. "I hope that this new service will help you learn about many new things."

A team from state-run All-India Radio has prepared programs in four languages to be shown four hours a day, morning and evening, in Bihar, Rajasthan, Orissa, Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh and Madhya Pradesh states.

Education programs — simple lessons for children and better living tips for adults — will be spiced by cultural interludes such as folk dances.

Farmers will see how to plant high-yield rice shoots and still make do with short supplies of chemical fertilizers, for example, while their wives will be told that the village tradition of nursing babies for up to six years is a bad idea.

"It is not our intention to run a school on the air," said Padi Venkatarama Krishnamoorthy, Indian Television's deputy director and the head of the project. "We want to identify a few subjects and ram them in repeatedly."

Programs beamed from two ground stations built by Indian space scientists advised by United Nations experts will bounce off a $200-million U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration satellite parked above Lake Victoria in East Africa and turned toward India for one year beginning Friday.

From the satellite they will travel into about 2,300 sets equipped with frequency converters and a wire mesh antenna 10 feet in diameter.

Each outfit — one for each test village area — cost the Indian government about $1,000. But since India has no coaxial cable system, there was no other way of bringing television to the villages where it has never been seen before.

SHOWMAN—Beth Watkins, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watkins, Route 1, Ashville, won the junior showmanship title at the Junior Fair Swine Show. Brown's Tractor and Implement donated the trophy to Miss Watkins, a member of the Madison Live Wires 4-H Club.

LET HER GO—Russell Smith, a local puller, stirs up the dirt infield as he competes in the 5,000-pound modified tractor pull Wednesday night. Smith, of Circleville, was the third puller, and the first man to move the sled from the starting line. However, pull officials decided on a restart, and he developed serious engine trouble in trying the pull a second time.

Sneek-A-Peek

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Save a little money and still have a good time. Try some of the backyard games below and get out of that hot, tiresome routine.

"The Family Game Book" divides activities into age groups. Suggestions for the youngest include painting sidewalks and house with clear water and large paint brushes. What could be more inexpensive? Or, you and your child can pile a bag of flour, salt, water and spoon in a sack, go outdoors and make homemade clay with the recipe in this book.

"Parties for Children" suggests activities to keep a yardful (yours and theirs) of children busy. Simple games such as races carrying a feather on a magazine or hunting a bean bag while blindfolded require little preparation.

"Keene's Party Book" has come up with what is the simplest idea of all. Just cut a ball of string into odd length pieces and scatter them. See which child can string his pieces together in the longest line.

"Outdoor Art for Kids" features projects that require patience. A favorite might be monsters, made of old pillowcases or remnants, stuffed with newspapers and painted as frighteningly as possible. Sitting outdoors in a lawn chair or propped up on a broom, they will surely attract attention.

Singing is more fun with silly actions to accompany the words. Familiar songs include "Do Your Ears Hang Low?" found in the Cokesbury Stunt Book." Many of our song collections include singing games like "The Muffin Man" and "Lazy Mary Will You Get Up".

Why not eat outside, too? For a novel drink to add to a sack lunch, try bumbleberry shake from our "How to Make Elephant Bread" cookbook. Shake this concoction of strawberry Kool-aid, milk and honey in a screwtop jar outdoors. Why waste electricity? Just harness some childpower.

If you want to teach as well as entertain, how about trying homemade butter, following the recipe in the "Pooh Cook Book?" Serve on any crisp cracker in cupcake papers or a throwaway container.

"Candies, Cookies and Cakes" has many non-cook recipes. After you have carefully melted the chocolate indoors, let the kids add nuts, marshmallows and flavoring.

If your efforts have been successful, top off the day with a favorite story. The fresh new copies of "Curious George," "Bambi's Children" and "Winnie-the-Pooh" are very appealing. Or if you're looking for change, try the new Dr. Seuss title, "Wacky Wednesday." Or enjoy Bill Peet's beautifully drawn comic animals in "Fly, Homer, Fly" or "The Pinkish, Purplish Egg."

There's a bonus in this for all you parents. After your happy, well-fed, tired children go to bed early, you can enjoy one of the popular new best sellers.

P.S. A big thanks to the local Kiwanis Club for their generosity in contributing to our July Reading Program. The large turnout proved the library can be fun.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Save a little money and still have a good time. Try some of the backyard games below and get out of that hot, tiresome routine.

"The Family Game Book" divides activities into age groups. Suggestions for the youngest include painting sidewalks and house with clear water and large paint brushes. What could be more inexpensive? Or, you and your child can pile a bag of flour, salt, water and spoon in a sack, go outdoors and make homemade clay with the recipe in this book.

"Parties for Children" suggests activities to keep a yardful (yours and theirs) of children busy. Simple games such as races carrying a feather on a magazine or hunting a bean bag while blindfolded require little preparation.

"Keene's Party Book" has come up with what is the simplest idea of all. Just cut a ball of string into odd length pieces and scatter them. See which child can string his pieces together in the longest line.

"Outdoor Art for Kids" features projects that require patience. A favorite might be monsters, made of old pillowcases or remnants, stuffed with newspapers and painted as frighteningly as possible. Sitting outdoors in a lawn chair or propped up on a broom, they will surely attract attention.

Singing is more fun with silly actions to accompany the words. Familiar songs include "Do Your Ears Hang Low?" found in the Cokesbury Stunt Book." Many of our song collections include singing games like "The Muffin Man" and "Lazy Mary Will You Get Up".

Why not eat outside, too? For a novel drink to add to a sack lunch, try bumbleberry shake from our "How to Make Elephant Bread" cookbook. Shake this concoction of strawberry Kool-aid, milk and honey in a screwtop jar outdoors. Why waste electricity? Just harness some childpower.

If you want to teach as well as entertain, how about trying homemade butter, following the recipe in the "Pooh Cook Book?" Serve on any crisp cracker in cupcake papers or a throwaway container.

"Candies, Cookies and Cakes" has many non-cook recipes. After you have carefully melted the chocolate indoors, let the kids add nuts, marshmallows and flavoring.

If your efforts have been successful, top off the day with a favorite story. The fresh new copies of "Curious George," "Bambi's Children" and "Winnie-the-Pooh" are very appealing. Or if you're looking for change, try the new Dr. Seuss title, "Wacky Wednesday." Or enjoy Bill Peet's beautifully drawn comic animals in "Fly, Homer, Fly" or "The Pinkish, Purplish Egg."

There's a bonus in this for all you parents. After your happy, well-fed, tired children go to bed early, you can enjoy one of the popular new best sellers.

P.S. A big thanks to the local Kiwanis Club for their generosity in contributing to our July Reading Program. The large turnout proved the library can be fun.

KSU Tape, Film Set For Jury

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Attorneys sparred over sights and sounds of the 1970 Kent State University shootings Wednesday, but a federal judge ruled jurors would view a film of the firing and hear a tape recording of events surrounding the incident.

Lawyers for the shooting victims, who are seeking $46 million in damages from the shootings, began an effort to link metal fragments examined by the FBI to bullets that felled 13 students, killing four.

The court permitted testimony from FBI chemist John Kilty, who said the fragments were similar to lead used in steel-jacketed, .30-caliber bullets.

Ohio National Guardsmen carried M1 rifles, which fired steel-jacketed, .30-caliber ammunition, on May 4, 1970, the day they fired on student demonstrators during an attempt to break up a campus antiwar rally.

But U.S. District Judge Don Young would not permit Kilty or plaintiffs' lawyers to make the connection without first demonstrating a tight chain of custody. He said the court would have to be shown who retrieved the fragments and how they were sent to the FBI.

Kilty said the fragments were taken "from the bodies..." but was cut off in mid-sentence by defense attorneys who leaped to their feet, objecting at the top of their voices.

The film was taken by former student Christopher R. Abell with an 8mm motion picture camera at a fifth-floor dormitory window. He said he exposed the footage about half a mile from the site of the shooting.

Defense attorneys objected when the victims' lawyers first offered the film as evidence but acquiesced after viewing it during the lunch hour. The defense believed a splice in the original film cut off a view of students surging toward guardsmen just before the firing erupted.

Lawyers defending 41 present or former state officials and guardsmen in the case have maintained that a rush of demonstrators toward the troops set off the shooting.

During the noon viewing, an attorney for the plaintiffs said a frame-by-frame examination of the film would show the splice came after students were shown racing away from the Guard, apparently just after the shooting began.

The victims' attorneys contend the film shows only five students within 85 feet of the troops, including three who are standing still.

The court has rejected the plaintiffs' request that a court-appointed expert interpret the film because of its condition. Abell said the film was wrinkled and scarred after repeated viewings and attempts at analysis.

The tape recording was made by former student Terry R. Strubbe, of Washington, N.C. He said the recorder was sitting on the window sill of his first-floor dormitory window near the hilltop where the shooting took place.

Taft And Glenn Split On Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio's two senators cast opposite votes Wednesday when the Senate tabled, 50-44, and thus killed a move by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., to block President Ford's oil decontrol plan.

Republican Sen. Robert Taft Jr. voted for tabling, while Sen. John Glenn, a Democrat, opposed the action.

Miracle Michael Equals Track Record At The Fair

The fabulous 3-year-old pacer, Miracle Michael, climaxed what has to be one of the most successful harness racing programs at the Pickaway County Fair by tying the track record with a 2:04 performance in the final heat of racing Wednesday.

Owned by Harry M. Glaney of Cincinnati and driven by Joe Essig, he won both heats of the fifth race, a 3-year-old pace stake with a purse of $2,263.62.

The first trip, Miracle Michael was on top at the quarter pole, gave way to Legend Baron at the half-mile mark but regained the lead in the back stretch and won handily in 2:04.1.

Legend Baron was second and Motown third in the heat. In the final race of the day, Miracle Michael started from the rail, went right to the top and never gave up that lead.

In the record tying mile, Joe Essig reined Miracle Michael to 33-second quarter, turned the half in 1:04.4 and was at the three-quarter mark in 1:35.1. He turned it on in the last quarter, pacing it in 28.4 seconds.

A malfunction in the pari mutuel equipment resulted in no wagering in the first heat of the fifth race. In all of the second heats, there was win and place wagering only. Miracle Michael returned $5 to win and $2.40 to place and Legend Baron $2.20 to place.

There were no big surprises yesterday in the races and the biggest payoff of the program for a $2 win ticket was $15 on Lord Mayor in the eighth heat.

Ninety-one-year-old Garrett Claypool was in the stands to see his promising 2-year-old trotter that had finished dead last in its first effort finish strong in the stretch to capture the second trip of the 2-year-old trot stake. Purse was $4,207.25.

The first heat had been won by Haskah, driven by Ron Newhart and owned by Ray A. Newhart of Marietta.

Second was Honest Hill, and third was Sass, owned by Norman and Donna Anderson and driven by Bryan Weaver, all of Circleville.

Trailing The Lord Mayor across the finish line in the second heat of the third race was Sass while Haskah was third. Time of both heats was 2:16.

The first race, a pace for non-winners of $3,000 lifetime with a purse of $600, was won by New Riegel Kid. Owned and driven by W. J. Boes, the pacer went its first mile in 2:07.3 and won the second mile in 2:06.3.

Miracle Michael Equals Track Record At The Fair

The fabulous 3-year-old pacer, Miracle Michael, climaxed what has to be one of the most successful harness racing programs at the Pickaway County Fair by tying the track record with a 2:04 performance in the final heat of racing Wednesday.

Owned by Harry M. Glaney of Cincinnati and driven by Joe Essig, He won both heats of the fifth race, a 3-year-old pace stake with a purse of $2,263.62.

The first trip, Miracle Michael was on top at the quarter pole, gave way to Legend Baron at the half-mile mark but regained the lead in the back stretch and won handily in 2:04.1.

Legend Baron was second and Motown third in the heat. In the final race of the day, Miracle Michael started from the rail, went right to the top and never gave up that lead.

In the record tying mile, Joe Essig reined Miracle Michael to 33-second quarter, turned the half in 1:04.4 and was at the three-quarter mark in 1:35.1. He turned it on in the last quarter, pacing it in 28.4 seconds.

A malfunction in the pari mutuel equipment resulted in no wagering in the first heat of the fifth race. In all of the second heats, there was win and place wagering only. Miracle Michael returned $5 to win and $2.40 to place and Legend Baron $2.20 to place.

There were no big surprises yesterday in the races and the biggest payoff of the program for a $2 win ticket was $15 on Lord Mayor in the eighth heat.

Ninety-one-year-old Garrett Claypool was in the stands to see his promising 2-year-old trotter that had finished dead last in its first effort finish strong in the stretch to capture the second trip of the 2-year-old trot stake. Purse was $4,207.25.

The first heat had been won by Haskah, driven by Ron Newhart and owned by Ray A. Newhart of Marietta.

Second was Honest Hill, and third was Sass, owned by Norman and Donna Anderson and driven by Bryan Weaver, all of Circleville.

Trailing The Lord Mayor across the finish line in the second heat of the third race was Sass while Haskah was third. Time of both heats was 2:16.

The first race, a pace for non-winners of $3,000 lifetime with a purse of $600, was won by New Riegel Kid. Owned and driven by W. J. Boes, the pacer went its first mile in 2:07.3 and won the second mile in 2:06.3.

Darcy, Reds Top Giants, 6-1

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The game was not really in doubt but there was a major league record at stake when Pat Darcy took the mound in the ninth inning for Cincinnati.

"I could hear the crowd pulling for me in the ninth," said the 25-year-old right-hander. "I was just hoping Sparky would leave me in. I really wanted it."

He got it, just barely, beating San Francisco 6-1 Wednesday night to become the first Cincinnati pitcher to finish what he started since June 11. The Reds' pitching staff had gone through a record 45 straight games without a complete one. It was getting embarrassing.

"It was becoming a monster," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson. "I'm glad it's over with."

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh rocked Philadelphia 8-1, Los Angeles ripped Atlanta 8-1, St. Louis beat New York 5-2, Houston defeated San Diego 8-4 and Montreal downed Chicago 6-1.

Darcy, 7-5, finished with an eight-hitter and his first complete game in the majors. Tony Perez drove in three runs with a triple and single and Johnny Bench had three hits and two RBI. John Falcone, 7-7, was the loser.

Namath Signs $900,000 Grid Pact

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — "The greatest sports attraction since Babe Ruth," said Phil Iselin, president of the New York Jets.

"Tremendous charisma—has a way of relating to people, kids and women as well as fans," added Weeb Ewbank.

"No doubt about it—he's got a way of making things happen, a big plus for the National Football League," commented Hank Stram, former coach of the Kansas City Chiefs.

The subject: Joe Namath.

Namath had just signed a two-year $900,000 contract Wednesday with the Jets at Hofstra University, where the team is in training.

The cameras had stopped whirring, newsmen had scattered, a few hardies lounged around Weeb Ewbank Hall, the Jets headquarters, mulling over the obvious question: Can a gimpy-legged quarterback of 32 be worth all that money?

"Well, I'll tell you," said Iselin, "we're already a sellout for the 1975 season and have a long waiting list. You can give Joe a lot of credit for that."

Stram, a surprise visitor, tanned and dapper with a Super Bowl champion's ring glistening from one of his fingers, agreed. "You know, I've had some contact with the World Football League," he said, "They were really disappointed when Joe turned down a $4 million offer."

"They were sure if Joe jumped to the WFL he would trigger an avalanche of NFL players who had played out their options. They said every time Joe was on TV with the Jets you could count on 10 million additional viewers."

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Earl Anthony continues to forge ahead of the field in the Professional Bowlers Association money standings with a $28,000 advantage over his nearest competitor.

County Auditor Loses His Office

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — Wayne County Auditor Glenn Newland is a man without an office following a ruling Wednesday by the 9th District Court of Appeals in Akron.

The court ruled the auditor must vacate his office so it can be made over into a courtroom.

Even since the legislature approved the addition of a second common pleas judge in Wayne County six years ago, the two judges have been sharing the one courtroom in the courthouse.

The judges signed an order telling the auditor to clear out by the end of April. When he refused, the case went to court. The appeals court ruled that the courts have the right to the space in the courthouse.

Musselman Happy With Sails Job

ST. PETER, Minn. (AP) — The new coach of the American Basketball Association San Diego Sails, Bill Musselman, says he decided to leave the University of Minnesota last week after receiving his second lucrative pro offer.

"I may not ever get this kind of opportunity again," he said. "The San Diego job is a great opportunity and they've got good people running the show there," he continued. "I had to keep two basketball camps going while I was at Minnesota to make a living."

Musselman said he turned down an offer of $250,000 from Charles O. Finley to coach the ABA Memphis Tams two years ago.

He also said the school's lack of support on his behalf in the wake of a National Collegiate Athletic Association investigation into university recruiting activities made the decision to leave that much easier.

"Who was there backing me up when I needed it?" asked Musselman during a break at his basketball camp at Gustavus Adolphus College Wednesday. "Nobody. That's probably the big reason I left."

Musselman presently has summer basketball camps at St. Peter and Hiram, Ohio and he said he plans to begin another at San Diego, where it's estimated he'll receive over $150,000 on a three-year contract.

At least, that's the way it appeared; but Robison criticized gathered newsmen for listening with one ear Wednesday night after Ellis' two-run eighth-inning home run had beaten the Baltimore Orioles, 3-1.

"When a story is carried somewhere else, you guys never get the full quote. The full quote was: 'He'll never be my regular catcher and he'll never play for me again if he doesn't come and tell me he's going to play the game the way I want it played—for the good of the team.'"

"No player is bigger than the team. It's as simple as that," said Robinson.

Now it seems Ellis agrees with that philosophy, although when asked if the hatchet had been buried with the manager, he said "I'd rather not talk about it. I'd rather just stay away from it."

Elsewhere in the American League, California rallied to trim Chicago 5-4; New York edged Detroit 2-1; Oakland blanked Texas 1-0; Milwaukee downed Boston 6-2 and Kansas City beat Minnesota 6-4.

Angels 5, White Sox 4

John Doherty's bases-loaded ninth-inning single capped the three-run rally that lifted California past Chicago and gave Nolan Ryan his second consecutive victory after eight straight losses.

Yankees 2, Tigers 1

Rudy May held Detroit to three hits and Roy White's tiebreaking double in the sixth inning drove in the winning run for New York.

A's 1, Rangers 0

Bert Campaneris hit his fourth home run of the season—the 28th surrendered by Ferguson Jenkins—and three Oakland pitchers combined for a five-hitter to carry Oakland past Texas.

Brewers 6, Red Sox 2

Sixto Lezcano's three-run homer in the eighth inning was the telling blow in Milwaukee's triumph over Boston.

Royals 6, Twins 4

Freddie Patek collected four hits and drove in three runs to lead Kansas City to victory.

Darcy, Reds Top Giants, 6-1

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The game was not really in doubt but there was a major league record at stake when Pat Darcy took the mound in the ninth inning for Cincinnati.

"I could hear the crowd pulling for me in the ninth," said the 25-year-old right-hander. "I was just hoping Sparky would leave me in. I really wanted it."

He got it, just barely, beating San Francisco 6-1 Wednesday night to become the first Cincinnati pitcher to finish what he started since June 11. The Reds' pitching staff had gone through a record 45 straight games without a complete one. It was getting embarrassing.

"It was becoming a monster," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson. "I'm glad it's over with."

Colonial Education Often Tied To Religion

EDITOR'S NOTE — Colonial education was rudimentary at best, and heavily laden with religious instruction. But it laid the groundwork for the future, schooling generations to come with a revolutionary aim: a people "capable of knowing their rights."

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

There was as much preaching as teaching in colonial American schools. But that's more than half the children of the period could have told you; they never set foot in a classroom.

From the outset, the primary goal of American education was the support of revealed religion. Though secular sciences gained growing footholds in colonial curricula after 1700, it was not until the Civil War that intellectual values superseded those of the Gospel. Even then much formal instruction was denied the majority. The duration and character of a pupil's studies reflected the social and economic status of his parents.

More patriots were educated in the home, the tradesman's shop, the field or the church than in the schoolhouse. To attend a free public school, where they existed, was tantamount to proclaiming indigence.

The American colonists first expressed their concern for education in their new wilderness environment 356 years ago this week when the first legislature in America, meeting at Jamestown, Va., asked England to send workmen to build a university.

Colleges, with their classical studies of Greek, Latin, moral philosophy and natural science, were only for the upper crust in the 18th century.

Children of the middle class served apprenticeships with a craftsman and cribbed their letters on the side. Or, those lucky enough to attend a grammar school or academy, were prepared for the callings of business.

A poor boy was fortunate to pick up a smattering of literacy at the free school, usually imparted with exhortations to obedience, thrift and industry intended to offset the examples of his shiftless father.

A girl of any class seldom received more than a polite education.

All elementary pupils, many of whom studied only at home, wrestled with five basics instead of the familiar three Rs. Beyond reading, writing, and arithmetic were rules of conduct and religion.

The New England Primer, the most widely used textbook in the 13 colonies for nearly 200 years after its initial printing in 1690, set the standard.

Its alphabet was accompanied by couplets heavy on moral admonitions usually based on Biblical incidents, and illustrated with rough woodcuts, many of them frightening.

Often the volume served several generations in a family. Frequently when a child finished it he finished his education as well, especially if he lived too distant from a town.

Historian Clinton Rossiter writes: "Most children were cut off completely by custom and economic necessity from secondary and higher education ... Neither the fact nor the ideal of educational democracy had any standing in early America."

A few moved on to English grammar schools, sort of prep schools for the mercantile class. One which opened in New York in 1732 offered math, algebra, geometry, navigation, bookkeeping, and Latin — a utilitarian education for the young merchant or planter.

College-bound boys, such as those attending the seven-year course at the Boston Latin School, which opened in 1635 and is the oldest secondary school on the continent, spent a lot of time translating classic Greek and Latin works.

By 1790 academies combining both curriculums replaced the grammars and dominated education until the advent of the public high school.

The first North American college, Harvard, opened in 1636. A dozen were already operating in Latin America. Intended for the production of Congregationalist ministers, Harvard's scholars studied Aristotelian philosophy, classical languages and Hebrew.

Of the nine colleges in the country by the Revolution, seven were sectarian and all were adapted models of English institutions, as, indeed, was all of American education.

By 1750 the rays of the enlightenment were showing brightly enough here that schools began to grow more secular, offering more courses in the sciences and politics, for example.

However, the aim of these institutions remained, by and large, the same: securing young gentlemen entrance to the ranks of community leadership and clergy.

For the general urban public some instruction could be had from newspapers — which increased from none in 1700 to 23 in 1765 — libraries, lectures, and even evening schools.

As rudimentary as the early education appears today, it would be a mistake to judge it by modern standards. It was at least adequate for the day and laid the groundwork for the future.

A contributor to James Franklin's Rhode Island Gazette, commenting on the paucity of American literature, wrote: "In the Rise of States, the Arts of War and Peace, Agriculture and the like are of necessity more attended to than erudition and politeness, that comes on of course afterwards when the Golden Age succeeds the Iron. So that instead of wondering why our country has produced so few good Writers .. we may rather admire at the contrary."

And, in the postwar period, at the advocacy of the founding fathers, the system extended and developed the idea of the school as a republican institution, a place to train citizens.

Benjamin Rush stated the case in 1786: "Without learning men are incapable of knowing their rights, and where learning is confined to a few people, liberty can be neither equal nor universal."

Colonial Education Often Tied To Religion

EDITOR'S NOTE — Colonial education was rudimentary at best, and heavily laden with religious instruction. But it laid the groundwork for the future, schooling generations to come with a revolutionary aim: a people "capable of knowing their rights."

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

There was as much preaching as teaching in colonial American schools. But that's more than half the children of the period could have told you; they never set foot in a classroom.

From the outset, the primary goal of American education was the support of revealed religion. Though secular sciences gained growing footholds in colonial curriculums after 1700, it was not until the Civil War that intellectual values superseded those of the Gospel.

Even then much formal instruction was denied the majority. The duration and character of a pupil's studies reflected the social and economic status of his parents.

More patriots were educated in the home, the tradesman's shop, the field or the church than in the schoolhouse. To attend a free public school, where they existed, was tantamount to proclaiming indigency.

The American colonists first expressed their concern for education in their new wilderness environment 356 years ago this week when the first legislature in America, meeting at Jamestown, Va., asked England to send workmen to build a university.

Colleges, with their classical studies of Greek, Latin, moral philosophy and natural science, were only for the upper crust in the 18th century.

Children of the middle class served apprenticeships with a craftsman and cribbed their letters on the side. Or, those lucky enough to attend a grammar school or academy, were prepared for the callings of business.

A poor boy was fortunate to pick up a smattering of literacy at the free school, usually imparted with exhortations to obedience, thrift and industry intended to offset the examples of his shiftless father.

A girl of any class seldom received more than a polite education.

All elementary pupils, many of whom studied only at home, wrestled with five basics instead of the familiar three Rs. Beyond reading, writing, and arithmetic were rules of conduct and religion.

The New England Primer, the most widely used textbook in the 13 colonies for nearly 200 years after its initial printing in 1690, set the standard.

It's alphabet was accompanied by couplets heavy on moral admonitions usually based on Biblical incidents, and illustrated with rough woodcuts, many of them frightening.

Often the volume served several generations in a family. Frequently when a child finished it he finished his education as well, especially if he lived too distant from a town.

Historian Clinton Rossiter writes: "Most children were cut off completely by custom and economic necessity from secondary and higher education ... Neither the fact nor the ideal of educational democracy had any standing in early America."

A few moved on to English grammar schools, sort of prep schools for the mercantile class. One which opened in New York in 1732 offered math, algebra, geometry, navigation, bookkeeping, and Latin — a utilitarian education for the young merchant or planter.

College-bound boys, such as those attending the seven-year course at the Boston Latin School, which opened in 1635 and is the oldest secondary school on the continent, spent a lot of time translating classic Greek and Latin works.

By 1790 academies combining both curriculums replaced the grammars and dominated education until the advent of the public high school.

The first North American college, Harvard, opened in 1636. A dozen were already operating in Latin America. Intended for the production of Congregationalist ministers, Harvard's scholars studied Aristotelian philosophy, classical languages and Hebrew.

Of the nine colleges in the country by the Revolution, seven were sectarian and all were adapted models of English institutions, as, indeed, was all of American education.

By 1750 the rays of the enlightenment were showing brightly enough here that schools began to grow more secular, offering more courses in the sciences and politics, for example.

However, the aim of these institutions remained, by and large, the same: securing young gentlemen entrance to the ranks of community leadership and clergy.

For the general urban public some instruction could be had from newspapers — which increased from none in 1700 to 23 in 1765 — libraries, lectures, and even evening schools.

As rudimentary as the early education appears today, it would be a mistake to judge it by modern standards. It was at least adequate for the day and laid the groundwork for the future.

A contributor to James Franklin's Rhode Island Gazette, commenting on the paucity of American literature, wrote: "In the Rise of States, the Arts of War and Peace, Agriculture and the like are of necessity more attended to than erudition and politeness, that comes on of course afterwards when the Golden Age succeeds the Iron. So that instead of wondering why our country has produced so few good Writers... we may rather admire at the contrary."

And, in the postwar period, at the advocacy of the founding fathers, the system extended and developed the idea of the school as a republican institution, a place to train citizens.

Benjamin Rush stated the case in 1786: "Without learning men are incapable of knowing their rights, and where learning is confined to a few people, liberty can be neither equal nor universal."

Panel Backs Short Ballots

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A proposed constitutional change to do away with Ohio's "bedsheet" election ballots was approved Wednesday night by the House State Government Committee.

If approved by the full House, Ohioans will be asked in the November election to authorize the legislature to come up with another way of selecting delegates to the national conventions of the two political parties.

Currently under the constitution, each delegate must be elected directly by the people, causing names on ballots to run into the hundreds in presidential years.

The proposed amendment, already approved by the Senate, would permit the legislature to devise a system that could, for instance, permit delegates to run in blocs under the names of presidential contenders to whom they are pledged.

A high pressure system dominating the state's weather picture is moving quite slowly. However, a low pressure system moving northward from the Gulf of Mexico should bring rain to the southern part of Ohio by Friday.

Early morning temperatures were in the 60s and low 70s. Highs on Wednesday were 90 or better at many locations. The coolest reading was 82 at Cleveland Lakefront Airport. The highest reading was Columbus with 94.

Trudeau Gripes About Land Tax

ST. ADOLPHE d'HAWORD, Quebec (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau is disputing what he claims was an overpayment of $8 in taxes last year on his lakeside lot in the Laurentians.

In a letter on his official stationery, dated March 27, Trudeau complained to the secretary-treasurer of St. Adolphe d'Haword that taxes on his lot should not exceed the minimum rate of one per cent.

"Nonetheless, for several years past the tax rate imposed on me has been well in excess of one per cent," Trudeau said, adding that it reached two per cent this year.

Canada's first transcontinental train arrived in Winnipeg in 1886.

SHOW STOPPER—The grandstand crowd, in between harness races, was treated to the Circleville Jaycee-sponsored Pet Parade Wednesday, and this family provided the show stopper. While the other pets and their owners were parading the track, the little girl proceeded to milk her goat.

Bridge Painting Brings Lawsuit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Newport, Ky., car dealer has filed a $100,000 suit in U.S. District Court here claiming that workers painting the Suspension Bridge across the Ohio River covered more than just the bridge.

Riverside Ford Wednesday accused the Atlas Paint and Sheeting Co. of Campbell, Ohio, of spattering blue paint on 400 new and used cars when they sprayed the bridge during a high wind on or about July 24.

The suit said the cars on the lot below the bridge must be repaired or cleaned before they can be sold.

The Kentucky Highway Department hired the painting firm.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Some things which seemed at a standstill can now be picked up, brightened, advanced. Avoid extremes in thought and action, however.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Mixed planetary influences. Be careful not to speak out of turn, and don't press too forcibly for what you want when a few well-chosen words will do the trick.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): You may encounter what seems to be undue opposition. Take whatever steps are necessary to overcome it, but do not mistake honest discussion for hostility.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Anchor to a well-organized program. Do not expose yourself to needless precarious action, or make foolish compromises, to be later regretted. Head up!

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): You can make your personality felt in many areas now, but be sufficiently prepared in situations through which you hope to profit. Haste would be unwise.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Be prepared today for interruptions, necessary delays. Some order and specifics will be disrupted, perhaps not showing effects till later. Clear the atmosphere of tension.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You may not size up occupational situations as accurately as usual. Better double-check! On the personal side, romance and travel favored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Some ungovernable moments indicated, but you can handle with your native intelligence and astuteness. Just be sure to keep emotions under control.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): A good day for attaining one of your cherished goals. Someone behind the scenes is working in your interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A fine day for teamwork. Many useful ideas will result from an exchange of views with associates. Some good news indicated in the p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A down-to-earth attitude needed. Don't let yourself be drawn into a whirlwind of rumor and speculation—now rife in many quarters.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Don't let surface glitter beguile you now. Search for facts before accepting any proposition—no matter how rosy it sounds.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a lively mind, a dynamic personality, lofty ambitions and great dignity. You are capable of leadership in many fields, but must curb certain traits before you are able to take on such responsibilities, which require self-mastery and discipline. Don't let domineering, excessive pride or impatience cause you to be sharp with others. Leoties make outstanding executives once they have conquered these faults. Otherwise, their value is lessened because they lower the morale of associates and employees. You are ardent, romantically inclined, love to travel and enjoy the luxuries of life—which you are willing to work for. Birthdate of: Herman Melville, author of "Moby Dick"; Yves St. Laurent, noted fashion designer.

Stockton Injured

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Three months of rest apparently was not enough for Dick Stockton, the Dallas, Tex. pro playing in only his third tournament since coming off a back injury.

Stockton, the top seed in the $50,000 Western Tennis Championships in Cincinnati, reinjured his back midway through his second-round match with UCLA's Brian Teacher Wednesday and lost 1-6, 7-6, 6-3.

"I didn't realize he was hurt until he was serving for the match at 5-4," said Teacher, of San Diego, Calif. "But when he served it was obvious he was hurt."

Wine Institute Elects Woman

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Margaret Shahanian has become the first woman in the history of the 41-year-old Wine Institute to be elected to the board of directors. She is vice president and corporate secretary of Guild Wineries.

She began her career in the wine industry at the Alta Vineyards Co. in Fresno, Calif., in 1947. Alta was acquired by Guild, the big grower-owned cooperative, in 1962.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — I, pardon the personal reference, am of the opinion that TV needs another awards show as much as it needs more reruns.

Don Kirshner will not present the case for the defense. He says such a show is justified when other awards shows don't give recognition to a certain category of entertainment — namely, rock music.

He argued his case so convincingly to CBS that on Saturday night, Aug. 9, the network will televise the "First Annual Rock Music Awards" show live. He'll be executive producer of the 90-minute bash.

It'll be the fourth music awards show this season. CBS already has aired the music industry's Grammy awards, while ABC has emitted a country music awards show and Dick Clark's pop music awards program.

Kirshner, a 41-year-old pop music impresario who got in the business in the mid-1950s writing songs with Bobby Darin, insists he's not putting on his rock huzzah "just for the sake of having another awards show."

He said he got the idea of doing a rock music salute two years ago while attending the Grammy show, of all things. "The awards were coming up and it was incredible to me that Led Zeppelin, the Rolling Stones, Alice Cooper, people who are the leaders in a $3 billion business, weren't even getting nominated," he said. (Grammy voting is done by members of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences. Kirshner's balloteers are rock music critics and members of the National Association of Progressive Radio Announcers, disc jockeys who spin rock music records.) Kirshner, who has been boosting rock music for nearly three years on his syndicated weekly TV show, said he proposed the idea of a special rock-only awards show to CBS without much hope of CBS buying the idea.

"I really didn't think they'd give me the gig because they had the Grammys," he said. However, he added, "CBS is a pretty sophisticated network and they must have felt there was a need for this. Even though at the time they gave me a chance, I didn't have Elton John or Diana Ross."

He referred to the two pop music stars who'll co-host his show on Aug. 9 from Santa Monica, Calif.

"It was just a concept then, but thankfully, things have worked out just fine," he said.

Knightie Big Winner

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Knightie paced the mile in a new lifetime mark of 2:02 4-5 to win the featured race at Scioto Downs Wednesday night.

The winner returned $10.80, $6 and $4.40. S Go, the leader until the final seconds, paid $7.20 and $5.40 for second and Davey Mont, $7.60 for show.

Johnny Miller Goes After Victory

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — "It was," said Johnny Miller with a pleased but rather wistful quality to his voice, "a very good year."

Miller was referring to his banner season of 1974 in which he won eight American titles and a record $353,021.

"I'm sure, at my age, I shouldn't be looking back," the slender, blond 27-year-old said, then smiled. "But it was, as Frank Sinatra said, a very good year. I have it. It's behind me. No one can ever take it away from me."

Miller, who teed off today as the defending champion in the $250,000 Westchester Classic, started this season in the same way that he dominated the game last year. He won three of his first four starts, setting records in a couple of them and shooting rounds of 61 in the first two.

But he hasn't won since then, since the first week in February. He's come close—second by a shot in the Masters, one shot out of a playoff in the British Open, second in the Philadelphia Classic. But he hasn't won. He hasn't beaten Jack Nicklaus all year. He's lost his lead in the money-winning race. The spotlight has shifted from him to Nicklaus to Tom Watson to Hale Irwin to Tom Weiskopf.

"In a way," Miller said before his start on the 6,614-yard, par-72 Westchester Country Club course in suburban New York, "it was a lot like this last year. I didn't play that much and I didn't play all that well during the summer."

"The only difference is that last year every time I got in position to win, I won. This time I haven't done it. I've let some get away."

Now, with a chance to regain his money-winning lead, he's looking for a turnaround in his season.

"About this time last year I started playing really well again," he said. "Maybe it'll happen again this year."

With $50,000 going to the winner of this event and $28,500 to the runner-up—prizes that are exceeded by only one tournament on the schedule—Miller has an opportunity to regain the money-winning lead from Nicklaus, who is skipping this tournament for the first time in history.

Don Gullett Finds Pitching Arm Good

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Don Gullett, sidelined six weeks with a broken thumb, tested his pitching arm Wednesday and voiced optimism that he'll be back in the lineup within three weeks.

"It felt surprisingly good," said the 24-year-old left-hander, who was off to the best start of his career when a line drive jeopardized his season on June 16.

"Trying to rush back would be a mistake. We've got a big lead and nobody wants to take a chance of injuring the arm," said Gullett, who has a 9-3 record.

The Lynn, Ky., native, a No. 1 draft choice of the Reds in 1969, said he pitched for 15 minutes Wednesday prior to the Cincinnati-San Francisco game.

"I didn't feel any pain at all," he said. "I felt a little weak because I haven't had a ball in my hand for six weeks."

His return to the rotation is a "day-to-day thing," he said. Gullett said he stayed in condition by running and engaging in arm exercises. "I think that will hurry up my comeback," he said. He feels it will take less time to get back in shape than it does for a pitcher reporting to spring training.

"At spring training, you're starting from scratch. I'm further along than that," he added.

He said he's aiming to be at peak shape by October 1, when the regular season ends.

"We have a lot of baseball left, but we're confident we're going to be in the playoffs. I want to be ready for that," he said.

The Reds had not had a complete game from their starters in Gullett's absence until rookie Pat Darcy, 7-5, went all the way Wednesday night beating San Francisco 6-1.

Colorado City Wins

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — After taking the lead of the top of the stretch, Colorado City held off a late charge Wednesday to win the featured ninth race at River Downs by a head.

Colorado City's first win in seven starts this year was worth $10.40, $5.80 and $4.60. Money Maze, loser in a photo finish, returned $6.20 and $4.60. Show horse was Carinosa II at $3.40.

Johnny Miller
Goes After Victory

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — "It was," said Johnny Miller with a pleased but rather wistful quality to his voice, "a very good year."

Miller was referring to his banner season of 1974 in which he won eight American titles and a record $353,021.

"I'm sure, at my age, I shouldn't be looking back," the slender, blond 27-year-old said, then smiled. "But it was, as Frank Sinatra said, a very good year. I have it. It's behind me. No one can ever take it away from me."

Miller, who teed off today as the defending champion in the $250,000 Westchester Classic, started this season in the same way that he dominated the game last year. He won three of his first four starts, setting records in a couple of them and shooting rounds of 61 in the first two.

But he hasn't won since then, since the first week in February. He's come close — second by a shot in the Masters, one shot out of a playoff in the British Open, second in the Philadelphia Classic. But he hasn't won. He hasn't beaten Jack Nicklaus all year. He's lost his lead in the money-winning race. The spotlight has shifted from him to Nicklaus to Tom Watson to Hale Irwin to Tom Weiskopf.

"In a way," Miller said before his start on the 6,614-yard, par-72 Westchester Country Club course in suburban New York, "it was a lot like this last year. I didn't play that much and I didn't play all that well during the summer."

"The only difference is that last year every time I got in position to win, I won. This time I haven't done it. I've let some get away."

Now, with a chance to regain his money-winning lead, he's looking for a turnaround in his season.

"About this time last year I started playing really well again," he said. "Maybe it'll happen again this year."

With $50,000 going to the winner of this event and prizes that are exceeded by only one tournament on the schedule — Miller has an opportunity to regain the money-winning lead from Nicklaus, who is skipping this tournament for the first time in history.

Don Gullett Finds
Pitching Arm Good

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) —

Don Gullett, sidelined six weeks with a broken thumb, tested his pitching arm Wednesday and voiced optimism that he'll be back in the lineup within three weeks. "It felt surprisingly good," said the 24-year-old left-hander, who was off to the best start of his career when a line drive jeopardized his season on June 16.

"Trying to rush back would be a mistake. We've got a big lead and nobody wants to take a chance of injuring the arm," said Gullett, who has a 9-3 record.

The Lynn, Ky., native, a No. 1 draft choice of the Reds in 1969, said he pitched for 15 minutes Wednesday prior to the Cincinnati-San Francisco game.

"I didn't feel any pain at all," he said. "I felt a little weak because I haven't had a ball in my hand for six weeks."

His return to the rotation is a "day-to-day thing," he said. Gullett said he stayed in condition by running and engaging in arm exercises. "I think that will hurry up my comeback," he said. He feels it will take less time to get back in shape than it does for a pitcher reporting to spring training.

"At spring training, you're starting from scratch. I'm further along than that," he added.

He said he's aiming to be at peak shape by October 1, when the regular season ends.

"We have a lot of baseball left, but we're confident we're going to be in the playoffs. I want to be ready for that," he said.

The Reds had not had a complete game from their starters in Gullett's absence until rookie Pat Darcy, 7-5, went all the way Wednesday night beating San Francisco 6-1.

Colorado City
Wins

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — After taking the lead of the top of the stretch, Colorado City held off a late charge Wednesday to win the featured ninth race at River Downs by a head.

Colorado City's first win in seven starts this year was worth $10.40, $5.80 and $4.60. Money Maze, loser in a photo finish, returned $6.20 and $4.60. Show horse was Carinosa II at $3.40.

ACHS Senior Attends Youth Confab

Debbie Kiser, a senior at Amanda-Clearcreek was one of the 250 youth representatives from throughout the state to participate in the All Ohio Vocational Youth Conference — "Vocational Youth A Resource for Tomorrow."

The four-day conference was held July 25-26 at the State FFA Camp Muskingum, located near Carrollton. The conference is designed to include those leading experiences which will enable the participants to assume major leading roles in the local school, community, and region. The contents of the program involved leadership development in a critical evaluation of current issues of interest to the youth of the 70's.

A committee of 10 students was nominated by the Ohio Department of Education, Division of Vocational Education, and was charged with the responsibility of determining which issues would be discussed. The topics included: "Which way America?," "Sex and Violence in Movies and TV," "Identity," "Morals," "Human Liberation," "Consumer Interest," and "Population." Each topic included a presentation by a prominent speaker with opportunity for student participation.

Narcotics Bill Nears Passage

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A new state narcotics law, clamping down on hard drug pushers while easing up on marijuana users, is expected to be sent to Gov. James A. Rhodes before the end of the week.

The Senate approved the drug bill 30-0 Wednesday and returned it to the House where supporters said they would ask for agreement with the upper chamber's version.

"There are certain things in this bill that do perhaps give a user a better chance," said Senate sponsor David L. Headley, D-28 Barberton. "But, I suggest this bill does not make it easier on the pusher."

The bill would set minimum mandatory sentences with no opportunity for probation or parole for possession or sale of bulk amounts of hard drugs, such as heroin.

At the same time, senators decided after considerable debate to make possession of less than three and a half ounces (100 grams) of marijuana punishable by no more than a $100 fine — a minor misdemeanor.

Marijuana possession in this category would not bring a prison sentence and those convicted would have no criminal record. The same penalties apply even for repeated offenses.

Almost all of the bipartisan Senate debate focused on the "grass" issue.

Mrs. Ford Keeps Busy

HELSINKI Finland (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford, resuming a full schedule of activities, was going island-hopping in Helsinki harbor today with other wives of national leaders attending the European Security Conference.

Mrs. Ford, who went shopping and then attended a wives-only dinner Wednesday night, was visiting an open-air museum and watching folk-dancers and a fashion show today.

The museum is on the island of Scurasaari where Mrs. Ford will also view a program of folk music and dance.

She will then visit the Sibelius Monument honoring Finland's famed composer.

A 40-minute boat ride will take her to Suomenlinna Fortress island to attend a fashion show and lunch hosted by Mrs. E. S. Annikki Mattila, wife of Finland's foreign minister.

In the evening she is scheduled to join her husband at a government reception at a Helsinki restaurant.

Before she and the President came to Helsinki, Mrs. Ford had canceled some activities in Poland, saying she suffered fatigue and jet-lag from their transatlantic journey.

But on Wednesday, she told reporters: "I feel just marvelous . . . absolutely marvelous."

2 Flood Plain Reports Published

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Natural Resources said it has published two flood plain information reports to help communities reduce flood damage to homes and businesses.

The reports outline the flood plain portions of Sycamore Creek, Willow Run and Beals Run in Fairfield County, and Rocky Fork Creek and the east and west branches of Sycamore Run in Gahanna.

Sen. Jerome Stano, D-24 Parma, offered an amendment to reduce maximum possession for the light penalty to 1½ ounces (45 grams) and stiffen the punishment for repeat offenders.

Stano said his proposal would make it easier to distinguish between casual pot users and dealers.

Atty. Gen. William J. Brown, who drafted the bill, backed Stano's amendment: "I would have liked to have seen the minor misdemeanor (marijuana) provision lowered to 45 or 30 grams, and I believe that's what most of the law enforcement community would have preferred."

But Sen. Stanley Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, warned fellow legislators, "what you really may end up doing is making criminals out of your own children."

"The bill that you are passing today — even if we don't pass this amendment — would be the second toughest (after New York) in the country," Aronoff said.

"It is not only the youngsters who will be subjected to this," added Sen. Harry Meshe, D-33 Youngstown, "there's an adult society that is in full use of large amounts of marijuana."

The Stano amendment was defeated by a 2-1 margin in a rising vote.

The bill establishes five schedules of drugs, ranging from pills, marijuana and hashish to opium derivatives and cocaine.

Dealers in hard drugs like heroin would get five years minimum for a first offense and seven years on a second conviction.

Drug ring operators or financiers would face a mandated seven years behind bars the first time they are caught and 10 years the second time around.

ACHS Senior Attends Youth Confab

Debbie Kiser, a senior at Amanda-Clearcreek was one of the 250 youth representatives from throughout the state to participate in the All Ohio Vocational Youth Conference — "Vocational Youth A Resource for Tomorrow."

The four-day conference was held July 25-26 at the State FFA Camp Muskingum, located near Carrollton. The conference is designed to include those leading experiences which will enable the participants to assume major leading roles in the local school, community, and region. The contents of the program involved leadership development in a critical evaluation of current issues of interest to the youth of the 70's.

A committee of 10 students was nominated by the Ohio Department of Education, Division of Vocational Education, and was charged with the responsibility of determining which issues would be discussed. The topics included: "Which way America?", "Sex and Violence in Movies and TV," "Identity," "Morals," "Human Liberation," "Consumer Interest," and "Population." Each topic included a presentation by a prominent speaker with opportunity for student participation.

Narcotics Bill Nears Passage

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A new state narcotics law, clamping down on hard drug pushers while easing up on marijuana users, is expected to be sent to Gov. James A. Rhodes before the end of the week.

The Senate approved the drug bill 30-0 Wednesday and returned it to the House where supporters said they would ask for agreement with the upper chamber's version.

"There are certain things in this bill that do perhaps give a user a better chance," said Senate sponsor David L. Headley, D-28 Barberton. "But, I suggest this bill does not make it easier on the pusher."

The bill would set minimum mandatory sentences with no opportunity for probation or parole for possession or sale of bulk amounts of hard drugs, such as heroin.

At the same time, senators decided after considerable debate to make possession of less than three and a half ounces (100 grams) of marijuana punishable by no more than a $100 fine — a minor misdemeanor.

Marijuana possession in this category would not bring a prison sentence and those convicted would have no criminal record. The same penalties apply even for repeated offenses.

Almost all of the bipartisan Senate debate focused on the "grass" issue.

Sen. Jerome Stano, D-24 Parma, offered an amendment to reduce maximum possession for the light penalty to 1½ ounces (45 grams) and stiffen the punishment for repeat offenders.

Stano said his proposal would make it easier to distinguish between casual pot users and dealers.

Atty. Gen. William J. Brown, who drafted the bill, backed Stano's amendment: "I would have liked to have seen the minor misdemeanor (marijuana) provision lowered to 45 or 30 grams, and I believe that's what most of the law enforcement community would have preferred."

But Sen. Stanley Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, warned fellow legislators, "what you really may end up doing is making criminals out of your own children."

"The bill that you are passing today — even if we don't pass this amendment — would be the second toughest (after New York) in the country," Aronoff said.

"It is not only the youngsters who will be subjected to this," added Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, "there's an adult society that is in full use of large amounts of marijuana."

The Stano amendment was defeated by a 2-1 margin in a rising vote.

The bill establishes five schedules of drugs, ranging from pills, marijuana and hashish to opium derivatives and cocaine.

Dealers in hard drugs like heroin would get five years minimum for a first offense and seven years on a second conviction.

Drug ring operators or financiers would face a mandated seven years behind bars the first time they are caught and 10 years the second time around.
